SICIS Team Project

Give us a project, we will make it happen. Our team of experienced architects and interior designers, with the sensitivity derived from years of work on SICIS products, will know how to expertly combine surfaces, furnishings, fabrics, and lights to create what we love to define as "a total SICIS environment".

Since 1992, our Interior Design Studio has offered a surface design service to international clients. The first project was the Bellagio, the mythical Mr Wynn's Casino Resort in Las Vegas.

With the passing years, and thanks to the evolution and expansion of our range of products, we can now offer a complete interior design service for hospitality, yachts, public and religious works, private villas and prestigious residential complexes.

Our activity consists of developing creative solutions and providing the fit-out to enhance the aesthetic values of each project and perfectly integrate its style to connote it as unique, according to the needs and budget of the customers.

Let us show you in the following pages what a total SICIS environment can do for you and your space. Together, we can create something truly exceptional that will inspire and delight for years to come.

The vaults are characterized by their shape and the quality of their materiality.

The warm, creamy white plaster adds to a feeling of intimacy while creating a light and open space. This plaster helps to create a comfortable noise level. The geometry of the vaults gives further depth to the vaults by causing subtle shading tones. Where the vault reaches to floor, a mineral acrylic finish will be applied at the lower parts, to avoid general damage.

There are special areas finished with hexagonal ceramic tile, with a custom-made light blue pearlescent glazing. These fields are located at the vertical circulation zones where they serve as natural wayfinding.

Mechanical equipment and services integrated within the ceiling will have a matching finish with its surrounding to create large, uninterrupted ceiling surfaces.

For clarification of coding, please refer to Chapter D1.

PEARLESCENT CERAMIC TILES: TYPE 2

The Type 2 series of tiles comprises of four subtypes. This series is characterised by an aperture of a variable size.

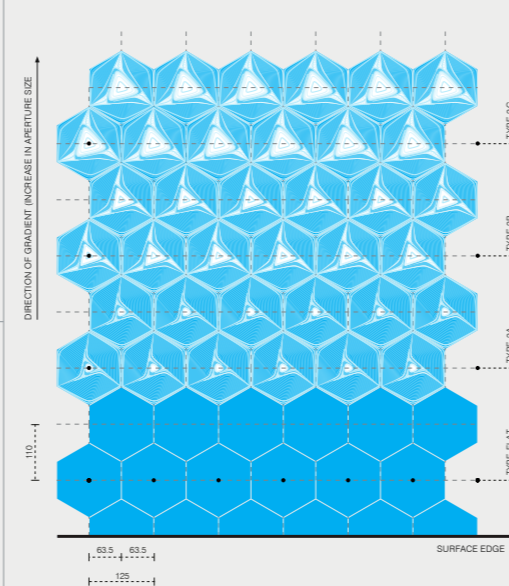

With the exception of a Type FLAT, each tile type has an aperture of a different size. They are positioned in sequence to create a gradient across a surface.

Areas near surface edges are tiled with Type FLAT – a simple flat tile – which facilitates the tile application process.

Surface Types and their Components

Vault modules are one of the basic components of the ceiling geometry. The vault effect is the result of two modules lining up with one another.

Three parameters are required to generate the geometry of a module: Apexes, Apertures, and Edges.

1. APEX
Modules typically have four apexes (with the exception of the elevator module). These points are determined by the geometry of the ceiling grid.

2. APERTURE
Modules interface with the ceiling grid and certain functional elements. These elements determine the aperture of a module. The four types of aperture are: Columns, Elevators, Downlights, and Signage.

3. EDGES
Edges are curves that connect the Apex to Aperture through a series of five points. These points are placed at intervals in proportion to the height of the column (described here in percentages). Modules have four edges. The surfaces of the module are interpolated between these edges.

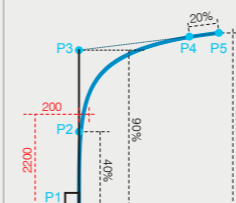

VAULTS ARE COMPRISED OF TWO MODULES

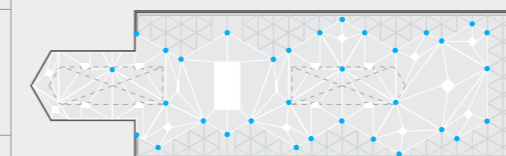

MODULES ARE ONE OF THE BASIC COMPONENTS OF THE CEILING GEOMETRY

3. EDGES: FIVE-POINT CURVE

Interior Design Service

Realizing complete projects is a constant challenge for us but one that allows us to express our potential and our distinctive values. Immersive spaces and new creations that enhance our Italian spirit.

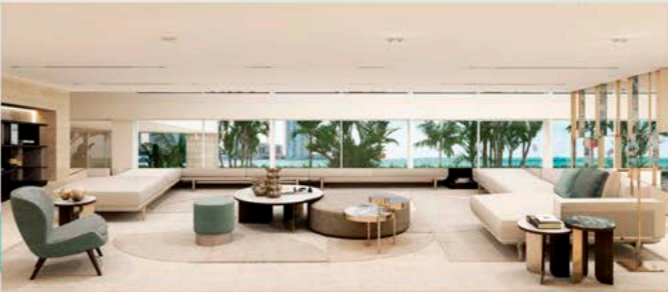

open gallery

Our experience for new indoor proposals

We create indoor proposals and solutions that, in addition to fulfilling the project requirements, guarantee superlative quality in every phase and detail.

An eclectic and contemporary vision of your rooms

The key word is balance. Colors carefully chosen in view of the overall effect, structural details, carefully-selected materials, walls that become an integral part of the project. We create our vision of contemporary living, where decoration becomes both art and a way of life. That of mosaic is therefore a language that accompanies us all the way, like a puzzle that comes together. The ultimate goal is to make those who live in the environments we create feel good.
